INTRODUCTION

I'm Gillian Gybels, a 26-year-old full-stack developer with a background in Digital Design, Web Development & Design at Howest.

I've always been a creative person with a passion for art and music, but I truly found my direction when I discovered the blend of art and technology. I enjoy developing websites where I can combine clean code with smooth UX/UI experiences, visual design, images, illustrations, animations and other creative digital elements.

Outside of my work, you'll find me capturing unique moments through photography while exploring underground spaces and alpine landscapes.

REFERENCE

I would like to express my highest recommendation for Gillian Gybels, who worked as an ICT Developer on the full development of the Teambuilding.be platform.

Gillian built this complex and impressive website completely from scratch and independently. This demonstrates not only an exceptionally strong technical foundation, but also a great deal of discipline and perseverance.

Throughout the project, Gillian proved himself to be a highly motivated and hardworking professional. He does not settle for half-finished work and always strives for the highest quality. What truly sets Gillian apart is his proactive attitude; he is a developer who thinks critically and constructively along with the team to find solutions. Instead of simply building features, he considers the bigger picture and comes up with innovative ideas to improve the platform.

In addition, he has a strong focus on User Experience (UX). Gillian understands better than anyone that a website should not only work perfectly under the hood, but that the interface must also be intuitive, attractive and smooth for the end user. The result of his work on Teambuilding.be is therefore a seamless and user-friendly experience.

“Gillian combines the technical skills of an experienced developer with the fresh energy and eagerness to learn of a young professional. He is an absolute asset to any development or product team.”

I wholeheartedly recommend Gillian for any future challenge in his career. I am absolutely convinced that, with his talent, motivation and eye for UX, he will make an immediate and valuable impact within your organization.

Should you have any questions or wish to discuss this reference verbally, please do not hesitate to contact me.
